No. I believe not." "Ha! ha! ha! Ihen I must tell you about it, for it was"-

Now, Dave, den't go and get to tellin' that old yarn agin, for 'tis too bad, I declare 'tis!' "Hold yer teter, old 'oman, and don't interrupt me afore the gentleman—you know every word of it is true, so you do." "No. I don't know no sich thing, to

"Well, as I'se agoin' to say, Mister, it was We all lived in old Kentuck then, and a purty wild sort of country it was, too. P.enty of bars, and painters, and Injins, and sich like. Why, sir, we thought no more of killin' a bar then than I think of killin' a hog now, and you may be sure I don't think much of

"Well, as I'se a sayin', it was a purty wild country. We all lived there, and old Mr. Thatch, old Tom Thatch-Sal's dad-he lived there too, and a mortal queer old customer he was, I can tell you. When he built his house he dug a hole in the side of the bill for it to set in-the top of the house and the top of the hill were just even. Then, you see, he didn't have to build no chimbley, cause why, he just went to work on the top of the hill to diggin' a hole about five feet acrost; and he kept on a diggin' it till he got clean down to a level with the floor; and then he came down into the house and dug out a allfired, bouncin' big fire-place, till it reached the bottom of the hole; after which, you see, he was ready to fire up. "Well, one orful cold night in the winter, arter Sal, here, and me, we'd got things purty well along-"Now, Dave, do for goodness sakes quit a tellin' on that! I think I'd be ashamed on myself, so I would! Pucker up, old 'un, pucker up till I get through, and then it'll come your turn. As I'se a sayin', we got things purty far along—that is, I'd popt the question to Sal, and she'd sed yes, and we'd both well nigh got over mouth afore kurthunder came some orful, skerry, trimenjous big lookin' thing down the chimbly, kerslatter right inter the fire, and commenced a kickin' the blazin' chunks about the room, and a makin' a orful onearthly noise. Sal and me, we gin a couple of the dreadfulest screams ever before hear'n in old Kentuck, and jumpin' up lit on the bed right atop of the old man and the old 'oman, and that was the last we know'd for a minnit or

.. When Sal and me, we came to our senses, we lookt up, and thar we seed her dad and dad's old blind mare, and her dad was a leadin her dad's old blind mare out'n the house by the foretop; and there was a orful smell of burnt hair in the room. Poor old mare ! she'd got to stumblin' around, a pickin' at the green grass what the heat of the fire had caused to grow about the top of the old man's patent chimbley, and seein' as how she couldn't see a stim of anything, the first thing she know'd she slipped in; and that's all on it."

THE LEAK IN HALLECK'S ARMY .- It is now well understood that "unauthorized hangers-on" were excluded from the Army of Tennessee by Gen. Halleck because the Rebels managed to ob tain intelligence of the disposition of our forces through some one with the army. The leaky in-dividual, according to the correspondence of the Concinnati Times, is a brother of Gov. Yates of minots. The Rebel agents were two fascinating sisters named Irwin, whose father owns any amount of broad acres and almost countless contrabands, and who have the enviable reputation of being the "most elegant ladies in Tennessee," reside at Savannah, and since the occupation of the place they have professed strong Union sentiments, and their parlor has been a general rendezvous for all oung gallants in the service. No one questioned their loyalty, and in course of time they became as familiar with our position and strength as our own Generals. The principal portion of this intelligence was imparted by a brother of Gev Yates, of Illinois. Immediately after an introduction to the Misses Irwin he became fascinated, and from that moment his attentions to both in general, and one in particular, became unremitting, and the consideration be received, which he attributed to the high position of his brother, and his own personal charms, led sim to an indiscreet, not to say criminal, revela-tion of all he knew about the plans of the cam-paign and the strength of the army. He is reported as a vain man, and flattery rendered him quacions, until the whole story was known to In the mean time the "erring brother" found the means of visiting his "loyal sisters" nightly, and what they learned during a day was known to Beauregard before a second dawned. Our authorities soon discoved that there was a leak somewhere, and the result was, a sort of persecution was instituted against newspaper correspon-dents, who are made to shou der all the fatherless the whole matter was revealed, and the gallant young man found it very convenient to omit all further attention to the damsels, and seek a healthier climate further North.

A letter from Havana, dated the 17th instant just prior to the sailing of the last steamer, announces the death of Capt. Pendleton, of the brig Amanda, of Searsport, of black vomit, which is the first case in Gavana this season. In Vera Cruz, too, the disease is committing fearful ravages among the French troops, having appeared early and in a more mailgnant form than usua'. Our New York exchanges speak of the put the price of mechanical labor is advancing.

WASHINGTON, D. C., SATURDAY, MAY 31, 1862

FROM GEN. MCCLELLAN'S ARMY. [Correspondence New York World.]

GAINES' MILL, Hanover county, Va., (nine miles from Richmond.) May 24 -One thing is certain, whether Richmond be empty or not, we are not there. But slowly and surely we advance. The indomitable Stoneman, from his position, can gallop to the capital in an hour. New Bridge on the route we are pursuing, is seven miles from Richmord. The enemy is not nearer than the other side of the Chickahominy at this bridge, which is twelve miles north of Bottom's Bridge and eight miles north of the railroad crossing. New Bridge is partially burned. The railroad bridge was saturated with turpentine, and set on fire yesterday, but the appearance of our cavalry caused the incendiarles to withdraw, and the bridge thus saved is now vigilantly guarded. Cavalry skirmishes have not been numerous the rebels withdrawing generally upon our appearance. Yesterday morning, at Coal Harbor wo miles east of here, a few shots were exchanged, in which a member of company E, 6th eavalry, was shot through the neck and mouth, being severely but not fatally wounded. The enemy made no further resistance, but retired precipitately to the other side of the river. The telegraph daily informs you how far we march, and where we are. It is not contraband for me, therefore, to say that the advance of this wing of the army is snug up the Chickahominy The advance is well supported, and the disposition of the troops cautious in the extreme. Every approach to our lines, front, flank and rear, is guarded well. No murderous surprises here.

NEW BRIDGE. As already stated, this bridge is seven miles from Richmond, on the main road from White House via Tunstal's Station thither. It is called New Bridge to distinguish it from Bottom's, Long, Jones and Turnpike bridges, as well as because it is not over twenty years old. The farther end of it is partially destroyed. It is mostly made of dirt and soggy logs, and would not burn when the rebels essayed its destruction.

"WHAT SWAMP?" This is the reply of the inhabitants to the numerous inquiries of soldiers how far its to "the Swamps." The truth is there is no swamp in The truth is there is no swamp in this vicinity. There is no river. Properly speaking there are no bridges. The Chickshominy here is a mere "brook," possibly "creek," twen-ty feet from bank to bank, fringed with willows, fianked by meadows, in places low and miry, water in the stream two and three feet deep, with soft bottom. "Chickahominy Swamp," begins six miles lower down, grows formidable at Bottom's Bridge, anywhere below which the ground is impassable for either army. When ready, have no fear of our ability to cross and recross here with success.

WHAT OF THE ENEMY? Twice forty-eight hours are up, yet we are not 17 Richmond. The signs of the other day falled. Being so very close to the place where the battle st be fought, if fought bere at all, it must be admitted that we have a very quiet enemy in front. What sly trick is he at? 'Tis useless for nim to attempt to surprise us. He can't do that. Our advance has been slow, secure, but certain. Our communication with the water base, is well open. Our approaches are all protected. We know just where we are, and how, if necessary, to get out of the enemy's reach in a twinkling, provided we find him attempting an unexpected movement.

Yesterday, under the sheltering cover of a prom-inent officer, who knows the difference between what a correspondent may do and what he may not, I had a long look at the country on the other side of the "Hominy," as the troops call it. [They say it takes its name from the chickens and hominy that abound, hence "Chicken-hominy."]
With strong glasses we scanned the fields and woods for a mile or two. Evidences of the presence of the enemy were less than on the previous day. A battery of artillery, visible on Wednesdiv, was invisible yesterday. But half a dozen pickets could be seen. A sergeant's guard, and a small wedge tent could be seen a short distance beyond New Bridge. One solitary secesh, in his shirt sleeves, walked his beat just at the bridge. A telescopic rifle in the hands of a sharpshooter, could have made food for dogs of him from where we stood.

THE COUNTRY. From the White House hither, by this road, is a delightful ride of eighteen miles. The enemy did not pass through here in force. Therefore there was no destruction of property visible. On every other hand we have found people and lands stripped The nature of the country to the north of the Richmond and York River Railroad much resembles New England. Farm houses and mansions look antiquated, but prosperous. People generally are at home. A few trifling supplies can be obtained, such as chickens, eggs, vegetables, milk, &c , for which payment is exacted either in specie or Richmond-city shinplasters The Treasury notes of both issues are refused. A great deal of difference in the value of a Confederate Treasury note and a Richmond-bank duewill based on a capital composed of said notes :

Nice distinction, certainly. But the simple ones don't happen to see it. Hanover county is altuated between the Pamunkey and Chickshominy rivers, is about 35 miles in length from northwest to southeast, 10 miles in breadth, and one of the most thickly settled and best cultivated regions of the State.

ID Ex Governor Stewart, candidate for Congress in the St. Joseph district, Missouri, said re-

"He believed the demnable course of the secessionists had killed the institution dead in Missouri. Slaves south of the Missouri river were very scarce to find, while those north of the river were found hard to hold. The institution existed here merely in name. It was merely a skeleton in our house.

Martin Baltsper, for the past eight years treasurer of Franklin county, Ind., recently decamped with some $30,000 belonging to the county. It is said he has deserted his family, and that a woman not his wife acompanied him in his flight. He left home for the ostensible purpose of settling with the State treasurer, which he failed to do.

THE EVACUATION OF CORINTH. erinth Captured, and the "Old Flag" Way. ing over the Enemy's Works-The Rebels Briven from their Forlifications

BEFORE CORPATH, May 29-Midnight .- No adlitional movements to-day except picket skirmfahing and strengthening our position. Gen. Halleck moved his comp two miles forward today. Lleut. Webb, an aid to the rebel Gen. Donelson, was among the prisoners captured yesterday. NEAR CORINTH, May 30, A. M -Gen. Pope's advance, the 38th Ohio, occupied Corinth at 6 40 this morning and placed the flag on the courthouse. The enemy evacuated last night and is

Particulars will be forwarded soon. OFFICIAL DISPATCHES. The following dispatches were received at the War Department yesterday afternoon: NEAR COBINTH, May 30 .- Hon. Edwin M Stanton, Secretary of War: Gen. Pope's heavy batteries opened upon the enemy's entrenchments yesterday about 10 o'clock a. m., and soon drove the rebels from their advanced batteries. Maj. Gen. W. T. Sherman established another battery yesterday afternoon within 1,000 yards of their works, and skiemishing parties advanced at daybreak this morning.

Three of our divisions are already in the enemy's advanced works within about three quarters of a mile of Corinth, which is in flames. The enemy has fallen back on the Mobile Raff. H. W. HALLECK, Maj. Gen. Commanding.

[SECOND DISPATOR .] NEAR CORINTH, May 30 .- Hon. E. M. Stanton Secretary of War: Our advanced guard are in Corinth Conflicting accounts as to the enemy's movements. He is believed to be in strong force on our left flank, some four or five miles south of Corinth, near the Mobile and Ohio Railroad.

H. W. HALLECK, Maj. Gen. Particulars of the Evacuation. GEN. HALLECK'S HEADQUARTERS, May 30 .-During nearly all last night the noise of the moving of cars and suppressed whistles of locomotives counding from the direction of Corinth, be tokened some movement going on, but not being any extraordinary occurrence was not considered worthy of more than a passing remark.

About 5 o'clock this morning, however, several explosions were distinctly heard; and immediately after skirmishers were thrown out and a general advance of our army was commenced, when it was found that the place was deserted A very large amount of railroad iron was found untouched, there being some twelve or fifteen tracks of railread from the depot to the entrenchments with side track and switches enabling them to move troops with great rapidity. From all the information gleaned from prisoners, it is thought that the evacuation commenced at sundown last night, the enemy retreating in three directions, east, west and south. Beauregard stated to the citizens last night that he intended evacuating and throwing himself on

At this hour Corinth is held as our outpost. Our cavalry are out seeking for the enemy That force gent out by Gen. Pope came upon and dispersed the enemy, eight miles below Corinth, on the Mobile and Ohio railroad, in the act of burning a bridge. They captured forty prisoners. The enemy's rear guard destroyed the railroad depot, a few bales of cotton, and a church. They intended destroying the entire village, but the citizens saved it. Some fifty of the houses were also broken open, and stores were burned, with their contents. A large cavalry force under Colonel Elliott was sent out on Wednesday morning, by a circuitous route, to destroy the bridge on the Mobile and Ohio railroad south of Corinth. Though they have not yet returned, we learn from prisoners taken that it was known in Corinth last night that a large bridge had been destroyed forty miles south by a body of our cavalry, and it was ascertained that Gen. Pope's 200-pounder Parrotts yesterday entiladed their camps, killing 80 men and 100 horses; also, that a 30 pound Parrott shell, thrown into Corinth as an experiment, destroyed locomotive and killed the engineer.

it is thought among military men that the destruction of the bridge south of Corinth, and the uncomfortable proximity of our falling shells, and the possibility of Federal success on the Mississippi, were the causes of the evacuation. The enemy's works here are certainly of great strength, and capable of a stout resistance.

Union Manifestations in Tennessee. Shelbyville, May 29 -A Union meeting was held in the grove near this place to-day, which was largely attended, notwithstanding that the enemy, two thousand strong, is reported to be within ten miles. They are said to be commanded by Gen. Adams, and threatened to break up the meeting.

The speakers at the meeting boldly proclaimed in favor of a maintenance of the Union. There was a large number of ladies present. Speeches were made by prominen: Tennessee gentlemen. Prisoners from Winchester report that there are eleven hundred rebel cavalry in this vicinity. Stearns' force is said to be completely demoral-

The Trophies at Columbus.

Caino, May 29 .- The steamer Marle Dening went to Columbus to-day to remove the chains and ordnance stores captured from the rebels when the place was evacuated. The value of the property is estimated at $100,000.

FROM GENERAL BANKS' ARMY.

[Correspondence of the Associated Press.] WILLIAMSPORT, May 28 -It is no longer contraband to state that, from the hour of recall from the pursuit of Jackson beyond Harrisonburg, and the "gobbling up" of all Gen. Banks' army, except two small infantry brigades, fourteen guns, and two regiments of inexperienced cavalry, that every officer was firmly imbued with the belief that should Jackson and Eweil combine to assail us, that we were completely at their mercy. It must not be supposed that all the force above mentioned could be concentrated to repulse the enemy in case of an attack. At least one half of the infantry force were required for special service, such as guarding trains of wagons, bridges, railroads, &c , while the cavalry were required to be continually on the scout to guard against a surprise. When your correspondent temporarily left camp at Strasburg, Saturday, previous to the bloody affair at Front Royal, it was known that hordes of gueriliss were swarming the mountains and the valleys of the north and south forks of the Shenandoah on our rear and fianks, but no indications could be obtained of any concentrated attack.

Still the very weakness of our army would, if known to the rebel commanders, be sufficient to induce an onslaught, with even equal numbers. No favorable responses having been received from Washington as to reinforcements, an officer was specially dispatched thithe to lay the case before the War Department in person; but before comleting his duties news came of the attack at Front Royal, and, a few hours tater, of the retreat of Gen. Banks' entire army towards Maryland. The first intelligence of the attack on Front Royal was brought to Winchester by one of the Ira Harris Guard, and was telegraphed to Gen. Banks at Strasburg, by Capt. Flagg, Assistant Quartermoster U. S. Army. But fifteen minutes etapsed after the rebels were discovered before Colonel Kenly's command was completely sur-rounded. The details of the murderous affair having been published, are emitted in this correspondence. The large quantity of medicines, surgical in-struments and hospital stores at Winchester were destroyed by Medical Purveyor Baxter white the enemy were in town. Dr. Baxter passed through a storm of balls and shells, and was several times fired on from the Toylor House, where he had boarded for weeks.

Collins' Zouaves d'Afrique, a battalion of the fra Harris Guard under Colonel De Forrest, Capt. Hampton of the Pittsburg Battery, a few of his men, and a small body of infantry, were cut off by the main bedy of the enemy between Middletown and Winchester. The whole force consisted of less than 1,000 men. The Zouaves and cavalry had been detailed to destroy the bridges after airy had been detailed to destroy the bridges after our retreat. Capt. Hampton, after securing his guns, went to the rear to bring off his battery wagon and forge. Finding their retreat cut off, they retraced the road from Strasburg. Several times Hampton checked pursuit by the enemy's cavalry by mounting a stove pipe on his carriage and placing it in position till the infantry had passed ahead. The ruse was not discovered by the enemy.

Reaching Strasburg this force collected thirty-five abandoned wagons, loaded with commissary stores. Thence they took the mountain road morth, and by a circuitous route came in sight of Winchester, only to find themselves in the enemy's rear. Taking the road to Bath, followed by a battalion of rebel cavalry, they finally got to the Potomac near Hancock, and reached here last night with but small loss. On one occasion the Zonaves (only about seventy in number) kept at bay, for a quarter of an hour, a origade of the enemy, and, perhaps saved the whole force. The Zouaves are Gen. Banks' body-guard and appear o have been well selected for such an important duty. The following is their loss: Killed-Jacques Laurier, Wm. McClane and James M. Britton; wounded-Charles Fedalen;

At Hancock the Zouaves found secreted and brought off six cases of rifles. Less than fifty wagons, out of about five hundeed, including many considered worthless by General Shields when he left the column, have been lost, and the enemy have derived but little benefit from what was abandoned on the road. A large amount of old camp equipage, turned retreating down the Mobile and Ohio railroad. over as useless to the quartermaster, was burnt. One of the principal acquisitions by the enemy The line is occupied with military business. was between six hundred and one thousand European rifles, left there by General Shields when he joined General Banks's command.
